Mayer, Vice President of the American Linen Supply Company — recognizes those Thunderbird alumni whose work advances American business through extraordinary progress in the field of international trade.

“Francis Najafi epitomizes the ideals for which Thunderbird stands,” said Thunderbird President Ángel Cabrera, Ph.D. “We are honored to recognize Francis, whose contributions to Thunderbird and achievements as a global business leader affirm our belief that business can be a powerful source of economic prosperity and human development worldwide.”

With the help of Najafi's $2 million personal gift to the school, Thunderbird School of Global Management launched the Najafi Global Mindset Institute this fall. The Najafi Global Mindset Institute is the first research center in the world to study the qualities that make international managers successful.

Earlier this year, Najafi received the Ellis Island Medal of Freedom from the National Ethnic Coalition for his outstanding citizenship, individual achievement and encouragement of cultural unity.

“I have been fortunate in my career and my life to be able to make positive contributions to the causes and organizations dear to me,” Najafi said. “It's an honor to be recognized by Thunderbird — the business school to which I owe so much.”
